The shadow side of language

Can you think without language? Try it!

Have you ever wondered how and why languages came to be? If you go to research, you will realize that man does not know this. They are theories and speculations, more or less disreputable. But whoever breaks through the ceiling of the wording of reality knows without learning.

Did you know that in the beginning there was only one language, God's, which is still spoken by all living beings today?

Is there a thought without language? No, it doesn't exist. There is no thought if there are no symbols to indicate reality. That is why man, until he speaks, is such a perfect reflection of his divine origin.

But what exists without language, you may wonder?

There are feelings, experiences, emotions, dreams, premonitions, intuition, wisdom..., there is gyana..., silent knowledge, this inner certainty that you are already born with and you don't need to do anything for it... except not suffocate it with extraneous influences that direct you away from yourself for answers.

None of these phenomena has and cannot have an adequate word to describe it, even approximately. When you name a non-thinking phenomenon, that is already absurd, when you give it a specific word, you frame its vital immensity to the meaning of that word. From an energetic point of view, you kill it, much like a photograph does, which freezes life's movement into a motionless static. From an indescribable experiential experience accurately recorded and experienced by your body, you make a static set of letters, with a certain definition and meaning that you learn.

Look... for example, the word love. Because you don't have the experience of love..., you don't have it, because you are taught everything from the beginning, even to walk, so that before the body could feel and yearn for its own divine nature, you are already suffocating on foreign deposits. They teach you, forgive, love your enemies..., and you will be loving. Of course, we cannot bring this into life, by learning the qualities of life in this way, we only cultivate mortal qualities such as guilt, self-disrespect, dissatisfaction, sadness, depression, etc.

For the same reason, you no longer know Vividness and Life, consideration and respect, solitude and silence... .. Due to the attribution of verbal explanations to phenomena that are inarticulate, from the magical and unrepeatable uniqueness of Life, we can make washable banality, factory production of one-and-of the same deadness. This is how we kill the Life within us.

Tell me now, to whom under the sun, who, by the magic of mechanics, thinks he is Alive, can I say such a thing? He'd think I was crazy, and he'd be right, because you can't tell anyone that!

I can only create the conditions in which he will be freed from everyday power grabbers and supported by the high sound of nature, he can see this and endure this... and that too on the condition that he sincerely asks for it. No one can and must not be deceived in Liveness. Everyone must know what is going on and what they are asking for.

So we made something different out of everything. Everyone interprets the word love in their own way, according to the level of their consciousness. Therefore, everyone lives in the belief that they are loving because they live up to their own definition of love. But few of them see that in them, in their immediate environment and on Earth, there have been continuous cold and hot wars since time immemorial, which are not and cannot be, the result of personal or collective love. A person who is a prey to thoughts does not connect his actions with the consequences that he experiences.

People don't know how to love, live, feel yet, now we are starting to realize this and that is a big thing. You will not heal anything until you know what is wrong with you. Until now, you have used language as a cognitive tool, now you are starting to use a natural gift that you do not need to learn, experience. Only now can you awaken to feeling, because the world is feeling. Everything is energy that cannot be perceived in any other way than through bodily perception, stripped of linguistic interpretation. This is your primary mission, all other objectives are dust in comparison.

Once you understand this, you will become silent and an infinite array of nuances of feeling and energetic communication will begin to unfold before your newfound awareness. Then, in the presence of two, the silence will no longer be painful, but a fruitful and rich exchange of infinite shades of energies, which rise between you from the inner elation at the renewed vitality of the liberated soul, which pulsate from pure looks, insensible touches, inner smiles, divine withdrawal. .. . Not just a word, but a thought..., this elation interrupts immediately.

How much..., how much people are losing, because when we take our first steps on this Earth, we learn the names of things. If only we could learn the names of experiential reality! And how much... how much we lose because we do not get to know our own greatness from the first steps, which we only get to through silence and quiet introspection.

Your newly awakened love will express itself in the most beautiful way precisely by keeping silent and smiling kindly every time you want to verbalize the thought. And how great will your love be when you are an example of silence, composure, self-control, peace for your child, when there is no trembling vibration of thinking, talking, buzzing of machines, cars, devices, in you and around you. And how much will your love be when together with your loved ones you spend hours and hours without haste, coaxing, nervousness..., loving, quiet, calm, present, considerate, eternal... .

Don't you see how everything in you and around you is the exact opposite of love and how day by day, precisely because of your non-love for yourself, you again and again consent to non-love and educate those you are supposed to love into it. If you wanted to love, not just think you love, then you should be in this world, not out of it. You should discipline yourself to keep everything from this world away and create your own reality that reflects the qualities of love.

Then you would no longer think you love and at the same time live unlovingly, but love would radiate from your every movement, look and action, without you thinking anything, least of all that you are loving. He who is loving does not know this. Unfortunately, the reverse is also true, those who are not loving do not know it. What makes him a tyrant, unlike the inwardly quiet lover, is that he thinks he is loving, so he unreservedly indulges in non-love, not seeing that he is actually a tyrant. This is what learned knowledge does.

Try, on the next occasion, when your family member does something stupid, unlucky, ugly..., don't react automatically like a locomotive at full steam..., if you can. Stay detached from the happenings, which are always under the auspices of Life's infallible energy dynamics, and respond exactly as you will, awakened in love. Try the next time you sit under your chosen tree with your spine straight to establish a distance from your body and don't react murderously like an insensitive robot to every animal that visits you..., if you can. Or the next time you're out in nature with your family, smile and be quiet. When your child, if you have one, looks at you laughing while pointing his finger at something interesting, smile and be quiet.

Do not explain to yourself that he is asking for the name of this thing, the child sees the plant as a living, responsive creature that attracts his attention in a way that it does not attract you any more. Nod to him in confirmation that it is really interesting, even if you do not find any magic in what he observes, then allow him his mysterious communion with the ineffable Beauty and Magic that the child still sees in Life.

You do not know, do not forget this, so trust in Love, which is calmness personified, and smile and be silent. If you would like to create a pleasant atmosphere at home, be silent and smile. If you want to calm your nerves, keep quiet and smile. If you would like to comfort a loved one, a domestic animal... you know what I'm going to say. If you would like to heal, do and act like this.

Anyone who has already done this has realized that to beat oneself as a product of society, when one perceives Life through the word and not directly through one's body, is anything but a joke. You have the deathly restlessness, which is the fruit of mental activity, etched into your genetic record, not because you inherited it from your parents, but because the sensitive memory capacity of genes infallibly and indelibly records your energy from the first breath. You have programmed restlessness into your body through a learned attitude and behavior towards yourself and Life.

But tell me, how will you, as an innocent child of one, two, three years old, be able to defend yourself against the pressure of adult insensitivity, which does not perceive the violence, which, through language learning, mental restlessness, talking and general noise, exerts on you? There was no way you could have avoided it. But you have every chance now! You only have to want and the Life in you will rush into liberation.

It is known, and many parents already realize this great insight, that the child is not taught anything, at least for the first seven years. I saw for myself how dignified, upright, calm, sovereign, widely perceptible and pure such a child is in the Crystal Water permaculture village in Australia. I felt retarded without him doing anything. Only there he stood in his full glory and I became aware of my poverty. You do not know how many such children walk the Earth today, but it is enough to know that they are, and that their presence among us is a great Grace. Leave the children to themselves, so if you choose Love over and over again every day, keep quiet and smile. This is the only way to let Life guide you to lift you to its divine heights.
